

ABSTRACT

In accordance with the objectives of the invention a new method and apparatus is provided for the removal of by-products resulting from a dry-film removal process. The conventional method and apparatus for controlling a dry-film removal process is extended by the addition of a Dry-Film Remove Pre-Filter System, which significantly enhances the capability of filtering a dry-film removal solution.